

Parliament in numbers

140

The number of marriages between 2013 and 2017 involving at least one party below 18 years old, including 67 civil marriages and 73 Muslim marriages.

150

The annual number of security bonds forfeited over the last five years for workers with salary claims due to reasons such as non-payment of salary or failure to repatriate them.

160

The number of cases in the last three years of workers being misclassified as self-employed, meaning they do not receive benefits like CPF contributions that employers are legally obliged to provide their workers.

960

The number of companies since January that have adopted official guidelines for workplace grievances, including sexual harassment.

164,000

Adult Singaporeans who live in private property but do not have any declared income.

682

Enforcement notices issued for pigeon-feeding offences over the last three years.

15

Patients over 45 years old – the age limit for assisted reproduction procedures – who have appealed every year over the last five years to undergo such procedures.